Overview

Is a 250-megawatt battery storage project in Ottawa down?

This post has been updated with a comment from Evolugen's Geoff Wright. A proposed 250-megawatt battery storage project in Ottawa's rural west is down but not out, after the city's Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee (ARAC) voted unanimously last week to reject the plan.

Could a battery energy storage site be in Ottawa's West End?

With files from CTV News Ottawa's Kimberley Fowler A proposed battery energy storage site in the city's rural west end was at the center of discussion during an open house on Sunday, with concerned residents coming to heads with the company spearheading the project.

What is the Crimson energy storage project?

The Crimson Energy Storage Project, solar power. More: Original public domain image from Flickr A proposed 250-megawatt battery storage installation in Ottawa's rural west won a resounding vote of confidence Wednesday as Ottawa City Council approved a municipal support resolution (MSR) for the project on a 20-3 vote.

Should battery storage facilities be required in Ottawa?

Ottawa's city council approved guidelines last month that would require companies wanting to build battery storage facilities to prove to Ottawa Fire Services that fire and risk management has been included in any proposal. It will also be required to install fire prevention and suppression systems.

Why is evolugen building a new battery in Ottawa?

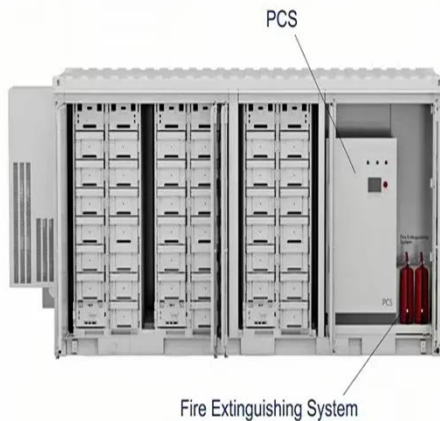

Evolugen's website says the facility will provide benefits to the community, including grants for local organizations, job opportunities for residents, and reduced energy costs. "We're really excited to be doing this battery project. It's one of two in the city of Ottawa," said Geoff Wright, Evolugen's Canadian head of development.
