Overview

Does Kosovo have a security system?

Kosovo's primary safety and security institutions include the NATO-led Kosovo Force (KFOR), the Kosovo Security Force (KSF), and the Kosovo Police, supported by international police forces from Europe. These agencies ensure peacekeeping and law enforcement duties, with the Kosovo Police Service routinely assisted by international officers.

Is the Kosovo Security Force a military force?

The Kosovo Security Force, established in 2009, currently has a non-military mandate focusing on Search-and-Rescue, Firefighting, Demining, and Hazardous Material Response. However, it is on the path to becoming the official Kosovo Army to protect the country's territorial integrity.

Why is Kosovo a safe country?

The country benefits from the protection of NATO peacekeeping troops and international police forces, contributing to overall security. Kosovo's primary safety and security institutions include the NATO-led Kosovo Force (KFOR), the Kosovo Security Force (KSF), and the Kosovo Police, supported by international police forces from Europe.

Why should you visit Kosovo?

With the cooperation of local and international institutions, Kosovo remains a secure destination for travel, business, and residence. Discover Kosovo's safety and security, supported by NATO peacekeeping forces and the Kosovo Security Force.
